

the right location for the stand-alone garage

a wise person builds on solid ground
and not on sand
- common sense

now when our aim is to make the home autonomous it means your home could theoretically be placed anywhere as long as you can get/drive to it everything has to be well planned and designed in all details enabling a “home sweet home” - the place you love to be because it has all the qualities you like : beauty, safety, abundance and where you feel good and are at peace first step is proper planning to get a clear perspective on what needs to be done, what goals are to be achieved and what amount of time is to be or will be spent on completing the goals nature can teach us most about what is required to get it right and inspiration and knowledge is available from the ancient Feng Shui teachings - the traditional practice, which use energy forces to harmonize individuals with their surrounding environment

- with other words “choose wisely the suitable place to build”

small and simple is beautiful the minimum steps when planning a new stand-alone garage

- 1 - define your needs
- 2 - what are you willing to invest
- 3 - which size and specification do you want
- 4 - how can my future life be without any energy bills

action to take is to order a pre-project defining all your needs and showing how these can be met with a stand-alone garage please fill in the separate pre-project application form and send it by email
